Undisclosed legal fees on bonds

"Windfall profits" to the law firm of City Attorney Lance Caills were alleged today by five local public officials.

At a press conference, they said previously undiscosed legal fees were paid in connection with the city's $10 cm.

Only a few weeks ago Byrne's double-shuffle from a seeming endorsement of President Jimmy Carter to a leap onto the supposed Kennedy bandwagon was hailed as a momentous political development. The mayor's endorsement with mayor's endorsement with mayor's endorsement with real temperation machine stepping briskly into line, was regarded as having sewed up fillinois for Kennedy in the critical March 18 presidential primary.

But the only predictable thing about politics remains that it is unpredictable. Thanged and at the Capitol there are cracks that Byrne's endorsement of Kennedy is now about as helpful to him as that of Ayatollah Rubollah Rubo Downstate Democratic leaders of varying importance have been jumping of the Kennedy bar was headed to the Kennedy bar was headed to the charge quiddlek. The post by the confortably in the Kennedy column has been replaced with a growing feeling that the state is now up for grabs and that Carter has a good chance of winning it.

Much of this feeling stems from a belief that Jane Byrne may be far more of a Downstate Democratic Trojans.

Madison showed its collective calm, though, as it quickly silenced the Vikings and returned to its orderly game.

"We get in trouble when we start runnin and gunnin," Stearns said. "When we start to fast break too much we have to regroup and remind ourselves what we want to do."

"We're capable of playing a running game. We did here tonight at times. But that's not our style."

when the Trojans slowed down they also slowed down the Vikings. Even with the early-quarter flourish, St. Paul only scored four points in the quarter, and Madison led 32-10 going into the final period.

Illinois motorists meeting fuel conservation requests

By JOAN MURARO

By JOAN MURARO
SPRINGFIELD — By reducing gas use one gation a week, illinois motorists can reducing a use of the conservation. Gov. James R.
Thompson says.
Jim Williams, a spokesman for Thompson said the "main problem is a great reducing the conservation is. It sure isn't odd-and-even selling.
Every place they've tried that, when it's their day, everybody lines up and tops off the tank whether they meed it or not.

"The only real way to cut gas use for sure is rationing, and nobody asked national voluntary reductions of about 7 percent, and asked lilinois during the first three months of 1980 to reduce daily gas use by 5.87 percent, an amount which translates to 21,000 barrels of gasoline a day.

Williams said the governor's staff has computed the 21,800 barrels would equal 900,000 gallons daily.
With 6.5 millinois, he said,
that comes to about a gallon
a week each.
"We think that's do-able," Williams said, "In fact, it's about what we've been doing since last May and June when we started enforcing the 55 mile an hour speed limit and informing people about the need to conserve."

Williams said the Illinois record of voluntary cut-backs to date has been "excellent" and said "we've done a marvelous job star," reducing usage by 5 to "millinois" record to confidence in the people of Illinois," he said, "They reduced usage without long lines before, and he's surthey will do it again."

Bi-State bus system's finances complicated by inflation and fuel costs financial problems because of the energy crisis and the impact of inflation on employee wages has been well publicized. The cost of diesel fuel to run the buses has increased 90% (from 40 cents a gallon to 76 cents) since the present fiscal year began last July 1. The con-tinued high rate of inflation has required more cost-of-living adjustments than origi-nally anticipated in wages paid bus drivers and

The management of the Bi-State Development Agency, of which the transit system is a part, has recommended actions which can enable Bi-State Transit to avoid a deficit for the present fiscal year. However, there is every reason to expect continued substantial increases in Bi-State's operating costs for the next fiscal year and the years after that as well

Sources of additional revenue sufficient to cover operating cost increases must be developed in the relatively near future to Bi-State's present revenues come from the farebox (18.6% of the current year's operat ing costs), federal operating assistance and miscellaneous funds (27.0% of current operatmiscentified is furnis (27.0% of current opera-ing costs) and subsidies from St. Louis County, St. Louis City and the State of Illinois (which combined meet 54.4% of current operating costs).

Differences in local subsidy require that Bi-State Transit's financial problems and possible solutions be examined separately for the Illinois and Missouri parts of the total system. The balance of this paper provides facts about the Illinois part of Bi-State Transit's service area for the consideration of area representatives in the Illinois Legislature, mayors of communities served by Bi-State buses, members of the Madison, St. Clair and Monroe County boards, and others who may he concerned with the problem.

THE BI-STATE TRANSIT SYSTEM IN ILLINOIS

Bi-State Transit's Illinois service area extends from Alton in the north to Columbia and Waterloo in the south and as far east as Edwardsville, Lebanon, Scott Air Force Base and Mascoutah. Bi-State operates 30 regular service bus routes in Madison, St. Clair and Monroe counties, serving the residents of many communities in those counties and unincorporated areas as well. Individual routes pass through more than one community, of course. East St. Louis has access to 17 Bi-State bus routes; Granite City, Madison and Venice (the Tri-Cities) to 6; Belleville and Fairview Heights to 12; and Alton, East Alton and Wood Biyer to 5

Bi-State Transit has a sizeable Illinois constituency. The number of Illinois passengers has increased from 24,000 on weekdays to over 32,000, or 33%, in recent years. About 2,500 students was Bi-State school tripper buses in the Alton, East St. Louis and Belleville areas. Bi-State Transit's growth is expected to continue as high gasoline prices persuade more people to switch from automobiles to the bus.

The basic fare has remained at 25 cents since Bi-State began receiving local funding subsidies in 1973. Only Atlanta among the large metropolitan areas has a basic fare as low as Bi-State Transit. In Illinois, there are also zone charges (10 cents per zone) to compensate for the unusual length of some bus routes. Missouri riders are not charged for zones because the cost is paid by St. Louis County.

Public Transit Cannot Operate on Farebox Revenues Alone

Passenger fares cover slightly less than one-fifth the full cost of operating the Bi-State bus system.' This is rassenger lates cover singiffy sets that offer the left of the little state of the little state of the riders, many of whom are poor. About 45% of the Illinois residents who ride Bi-State earn less than $6,500 a year.

How The Local Subsidy Problem Developed

The Downstate Illinois Public Transportation Act of 1975 provided that Bi-State Transit would receive 2/32nds of the state sales tax collected in Madison, St. Clair and Monroe counties. This was intended to cover the Illinois share of the operating subsidy. However, the cost of fuel, lubricants and tires and other operating expenses increased faster than revenues from the sales tax. Bi-State Transit's Illinois bus operations incurred a $1.2 million deficit for the fiscal year ended last June 30.

The Illinois Legislature earlier this year passed a bill which provided that Bi-State, beginning July 1, 1979, would receive 3/32nds instead of 2/32nds of sales tax collections in the three Illinois counties. This increased the Illinois subsidy for the current fiscal year, which ends June 30, 1980, to $8.1 million.

The Legislature responded by including in the bill a provision that Bi-State Transit's share of the state sales tax from Madison, St. Clair and Monroe counties will drop back to 1/32nd — a cut of 66% — unless the three counties have provided the bus system with $1 million in local matching subsidies by the start of the next fiscal year which begins July 1, 1980.

Reducing Bi-State Transit's subsidy from state sales tax collections in the three counties to 1/32nd would force a drastic cutback in bus service for that area. Bi-State would be over $5 million short of the amount needed to pay for its Illinois bus operations during the next fiscal year.

Steps to Consider in Looking for a Solution

At the request of the Board of Commissioners of the Bi-State Development Agency (five members from Illinois and five from Missouri), the management of Ri-State Development Agency (five members from Illinois and five from Missouri). the request or the Board of Commissioners of the Bi-State Development Agency (five members fro nois and five from Missouri), the management of Bi-State has recommended three steps which, if ear tild be taken prior to July 1, 1980, would allow Bi-State Transit to avoid a crippling reduction in its nois bus operations.

- Increase the basic bus fare from 25 cents to 50 cents, effective with the start of the next fiscal year July 1, 1980. (The fare increase is proposed for bus lines in Missouri as well as Illinois.)
- Prepare and submit legislation which would continue past the current fiscal year the state sales tax subsidy at 3/32nds of the amount collected in the three Illinois counties.
- Identify a source of $1,000,000 in local funding from Bi-State's Illinois service area.

The Bi-State Agency's Board of Commissioners has authority over fares. However, all three of the recommended steps must be taken to avoid the service reduction which would be forced on Bi-State's Illinois bus routes if the sales tax subsidy were cut back to 1/32nds. And the final decision on the second and third steps or on any other action to avoid the impending deficit is clearly up to the elected leaders of major purity of the three countries in Bi-State's Illinois senior or considerations. units of local government of the three counties in Bi-State's Illinois service area and the representatives from those counties in the Illinois Legislature.

The political leadership of the three counties controls the disposition of tax revenues which can be made available to Bi-State. Only the political leadership is in a position to decide both what level of bus service the area is willing to support . . . and where the money for the subsidy required to provide that level will come from. (This applies equally to Bi-State Transit's Missouri operations which are also, for somewhat different reasons, faced with having to overcome substantial operating deficits in the future.

Over-regulation dims future of governments as well as companies — small Illinois school districts

Regional service organizations could be the best, last hope for the continuing existence of small and rural school districts, according to an editorial in the latest issue of Illinois School Board Journal. It is published every other month by the Illinois Association of School Boards for more than 10,000 school board members, administrators, and other subscribers.

The current debate about regional superintendents wrongly centers on the form of the office and the number of regions needed, write the additors
